Send is a small Windows application whose purpose is to help you send messages from the command-line console to other users from your local area networks. The tool is fully compatible with WinPopup and Windows NT Messenger Service. You can send a message at once to several recipients and load messages and recipients from a plain text file. User interface The utility can be controlled via the command-line console, so you need to have some basic experience skills in writing command-line tasks. Several tips are also revealed in the main window for helping you understand how the program works. Send messages from the command-line Sent Product Key gives you the possibility to send 'net send' messages to the specified recipients. You need to input a comma separated list of users, as well as comma separated list of domains/workgroups. What's more, the application gives you the possibility to enter a user-defined text message and enter a message file to be used in the batch processing mode. Several configuration settings The program offers you the freedom to specify the timeout in milliseconds, enable broadcast message fragmentation (by default this option is disabled), set up a signature (the default option is computer), adjust the verbosity level (the default configuration is set to normal), as well as pick the message file format. Bottom line All in all, Sent offers a straightforward software solution for helping you send messages within your LAN. The application can be used as a replacement for the Windows 'net send' or 'msg' command. If you want to bypass the installation steps, you can check out the portable version of the program which can be found here. Send messages from the command-line Dose any one know how to get the shared memory handle from a windows service using C#? I have a service which reads data from a serial device and writes the data to database, which the dabase is a shared memory. I can not close the database handle, because the service will start again and the database needs to be shared. if (sharedMemory.SharedData.SharedDataCollection.Contains(serialDeviceName)) { // my serial device will be closed here } Any advices will be appreciated. A: There is no concept of Shared Memory in.NET. What you want to do might require a change to your application design. Notizie Nuovo provvedimento sul cancro: la media, che prevede 7-10 anni di vita, comincia a essere applicata agli allattati. Si tratta di un nuovo eccezionale atto normativo, che fa parte delle prossime riforme approvate dal Presidente con leggi che modificano l'iter previsto dall'attuale legge sulle scuole e che aboliranno le concessioni scuola-lavoro. L'ultimo provvedimento rientrato nel decreto che potrebbe entrare in vigore tra alcuni mesi, porterà a una diminuzione dell'aspettativa di vita dei cani da alcuni anni. Sulla base di una proposta dell'Ente nazionale di oncologia canina (Enaoc) e di un docente universitario, il provvedimento prevede di applicare la media ai cuccioli soli e allattati agli inizi dell'infanzia. I cani che saranno stati curati con la morfina da parte di un veterinario per riuscire a sopravvivere dovranno essere trattati con un farmaco farmaceutico durante tutto il loro soggiorno nella famiglia. Si tratta del

Old Fox Hole was one of the first route descents in the Wind River Range to distinguish a "shoulder" (also referred to as a "saddle") on the west side of the wind roe from the traditional

"nose", which is on the east side of the wind roe. The first descent of Old Fox Hole was made in June 1912, by A.M. Harrington and John A. Muir. The pair of climbers were young; Harrington was just 17 and Muir was 19. Description Old Fox Hole lies within the Wind River Range, south of Aylward Peak. The
