The SSS is a secret agency set up by the Scottish parliament to protect Scotland from outside threats. Led by an officer in the Criminal Investigation Department (CID) known only as "The Magnificent", the SSS is a rag-tag group of misfit intelligence specialists. They have no idea what their mission really is until they receive a cryptic message from a colleague of Ken's. Due to a major change in the composition of the Scottish parliament, the only people who have the authority to declare war are the Scottish First Minister, and the Minister for the Cabinet Office. Ken isn't too happy about this, but decides to help them out anyway...Features: Over 15 action-packed missions with unique protagonists each with their own abilities and equipment. Follow Ken Maxwell, a washed-up CID agent and academic expert in Computer Aided Geometry. Two CID cops, Carlyle and Greg, and a firebrand journalist, Barry Stone, will be your co-workers and fellow members of the SSS. Each mission will have multiple endings with unique dialogue and camera angles. Using characters from the SSS, the Magnificent, or Ken, you have to capture members of the hostile organization and get them to a safe haven. What's new:

In the same week that the FDA granted a new drug user access to a low dose birth control, the FDA and the makers of the drug are facing a suit in New Jersey. In addition to birth control, the drug is being given to migraine patients. The makers of the drug are in deep trouble with the FDA because according to an FDA drug approval letter, a drug can only be approved if it is safe even if patient deaths continue. Studies of the drug have in fact failed to discuss any deaths occurring. It is an expensive drug and is being marketed by another company. The drug has been tried on migraine patients and is based on the experimental use of magnesium for migraine. Magnesium is an ion that is used in the production of high-fructose corn syrup. It is a commonly consumed food and is loaded in many soft drinks. Based on the marketing of the drug — it is twice as expensive as the lowest dose of the birth control. A court ordered that the company must tell the trial judge which patient deaths occurred because the trial court is responsible for the safety of their patients. The makers of the drug plan to appeal the decision of the FDA to not approve the drug because the high doses of magnesium used in some studies were actually toxic to the patients. The makers of the drug will claim that they only want to experiment with short term use. The drug was not tested with long term use. It is significant to note that drugs are allowed to be approved years after the drug was tested for safety and the death rate was found to be over 30%. In fact, drugs are approved based on conduct of other drug companies using the drug. The drug is reportedly effective and over a quarter of migraine patients in the clinical trials have experienced reduction in migraine frequency. It is a safe and cheap drug that reduces the necessity of using other medications. In fact, the FDA approved it for the use in migraine and over-the-counter birth control. Most birth control medications act to create an empty feeling or anxiety. It is usually effective for migraine headaches. It is never recommended to purchase and use the drug for other maladies including the migraines. Everything from the marketing scheme, to the drug itself and the tests used indicate that the maker of the drug is using a marketing scheme when they have poor evidence for long term use. There have been multiple lawsuits in the past related to Big Pharma and the marketing of a drug for a

Set in the time of the Renaissance, reigns one of the darkest monarchs in the history of Europe: a cunning sorcerer who holds the key to the well-being and prosperity of the empire. His name is the Signoress of the Black Rose, Alessandra de la Torre. The King sends assassins after Alessandra, and the Croixleur Sigma is born. Created to protect the Queen, this teenage girl is the only one capable of restoring peace in the kingdom. Through intense battles and exciting twists and turns, Croixleur Sigma challenges the history of its birth. In the eight years following her creation, this young man has only come to realize that he is in love with her. Even though he must endure multiple trials and high-speed hack-and-slash action to prove his courage, he can only be consumed by doubt and the fear of losing her. My face looks human, but it is not! It is a new shape, one built by the King's alchemists and able to cut through anything in his way. In future I will only kill a human if it serves his interests! I am Croixleur Sigma. I am the blade of justice. And I am ready for anything in my quest to become the greatest hero this land has ever seen! (Please note that certain aspects of the game such as level design and enemy placement may not be optimised for PC. The game is currently on Steam Early Access and is optimised for Xbox One and PS4.) For more information, please visit Why was it created? Croixleur Sigma is a hack-n-slash action game created with a concept that's taken from the Devil May Cry series, with its intense enemy encounters and high-speed action. The goal was to create a new game in the series that was more accessible for players, who could enjoy classic hack-n-slash action without spending hours and hours in frustrating enemy encounters. What is the gameplay like? Croixleur Sigma is a first-person hack-n-slash action game where the player takes on the role of a dashing hero who roams the world of Ilance to stop monsters from destroying the continent. It features characters that are easy to play and use, with the battles unfolding in a fast-paced format while the combat system operates with a

The present invention relates to communication services, and more particularly to a communication system and method that allow for “ad hoc” communications to be established based on the availability of resources in a communication system. Packet switching can be viewed as a process by which certain kinds of data communication services (e.g. the transport of a packet of data from one physical point to another) are permitted between certain specific pre-defined terminals (e.g. the packet switch needs to learn (‘discover’) the address of the other specific pre-defined terminal (‘peer’) before the data traffic of the terminal can be exchanged using the packet switch. Packet switched technology may also be used in communication networks over power lines, e.g., ANSI/TIA/EIA-568-A—Standard for a Data Communications System Capable of both Primary and Secondary Connectivity for Power Line Communications Networks, or in communication networks over coaxial cables. In the case of communication networks over power lines, packet switched technology may be used where the point-to-point physical layout of the power lines disallows the use of a traditional circuit-switched communication network. In the case of communication networks over coaxial cables, packet switched technology may
