I have tried following code. `response.implicitly_wait(15)` `response = browser.get("")` `print response.status_code` output: 400 I have also tried using `get_response_header` function to get status code. However, both of the methods seems to retrieve different value. How can I make sure that I get the correct response code, if I am using both methods? A: Selenium uses "non-blocking" browser methods which are asynchronous so its hard to know when the response arrives in the time in which you try to read it. This is why the status code is not what you expect. You can make the get call synchronous but it will block the thread and the response won't arrive. `browser.get("", timeout=5)` Calcitonin gene-related peptide inhibits the uptake of serotonin by isolated cerebrovascular smooth muscle cells: role of serotonin transporters. Previous studies have shown that calcitonin gene-related peptide (CGRP) inhibits the vasoconstrictor effect of 5-hydroxytryptamine (5-HT) via the high-affinity receptor in isolated guinea pig cerebral arteries. In the present study, the effect of CGRP on the uptake of [<sup>3</sup>H]5-HT by isolated cerebral arterial smooth muscle cells was investigated. Uptake of 5-HT was concentration-dependent and saturable. Uptake was significantly greater in cells

1) Download the game by clicking the button below, Save game file to the desktop, and then double-click game to run it 2) Once the game is downloaded, right-click on the game file and choose the "Extract Here" option. 3) Once extracted, open the game folder and locate the folder named "base". On the other hand, if you need to print a receipt (e.g. for a store or restaurant), you can set up your iPad to do this automatically. How to Print Receipts on Your iPad. The information available to the device. The main component is a BIOS chip, and uses a USB for power. Most building building around the globe have already started using this technology and are having success with it. Luckily, there are a handful of technologies that have come before it and are likely to go with it. One of these is ESC. ESC, often called escape, is a little button on your keyboard that you could use to escape from your current keyboard and keyboard layout. The most well-known uses is that you would press and hold the ESC key while in game when you are about to be attacked. This action will immediately cause the game to skip to its host operating system. The Escape key is considered by many to be the second most important key in the entire keyboard. They are located near the space bar and right next to the W, A, and D keys. The space bar is actually really large, but the Ctrl and Alt keys are only 1/4 to 1/2 the size of the other keys. That being said, the space bar is still bigger than the other keys.

and a laptop? Dellguy| 6 years ago | 02:17 The keys are there they are just not very noticeable. If you have one of those curved monitors or you have a macbook pro or one of those apple intel monitories where the bottom part of the laptop is so curved you can't see them you won't notice they are there unless you have to find out what key is on them. It's actually a great feature but only noticeable for the person you are talking to and possibly for yourself. Gator247| 6 years ago
