Your high school or college students can go through the spirit character generation online.. Choose a. Although digital character generation is an undeniable convenience, it is also. Monday, November 3, 2009 In this series of photos, the photographer Matthew D. Ecker (www.EckerArt.com) captured the Fourth of July at the north lake of the Walter Reed Army Medical Center (WRAAMC) in Washington, DC. Matthew, with his incredibly talented art-photographer pal Jeffrey Olson, shot these before/after pictures for the WRAAMC in Washington DC. In addition to shooting portraits and public figures, Matthew has worked around the world as a war photographer for the last twenty years. He has served as Staff photographer for the US National Museum of the Marine Corps in Triangle, Virginia. He is now the official Staff Photographer for the US National Purple Heart Association and the US Army. Perhaps that is why he is so good at his job. Matthew's work is world-class! One of the less-intimate aspects of being Staff Photographer is that the subjects you photograph do not know they are being photographed. In other words, you are reporting a news story but they don't know it...until they're told. Here is the email Matthew sent me telling me about being Staff Photographer: I am S.P. Matthew Ecker at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, the official Staff Photographer for the US National Purple Heart Association and the US Army. I am also the West/Midwest Correspondent for the US National Museum of the Marine Corps (
